

Shell Global Helpline - Telephone Numbers

The Shell Global Helpline allows reports to be submitted by either a web-based form at <https://shell.alertline.eu> or by utilising one of a number of telephone lines that will connect you to a Helpline interviewer. This document lists the currently established telephone lines, by country in which Shell operates.

Note 1: The Helpline is not currently available for use from the following country or by anyone in relation to any person residing in the following country:

Iran

Note 2: A specific Helpline is provided for France, Spain and Denmark.

Note 3: A "Call Collect" call must be made through a local operator to ensure the call is free of charge for the caller. Please take the following steps:

- Contact your local operator (numbers can vary per city and carrier within the same country).
- Request a collect call to telephone number +1 704 973 0344 in the United States.
- When the operator asks who is placing the call, state your company name, not your personal name.
- Please note: Your local Telecom provider might charge a fee for local use of your telephone.
- If the call is not made through the local operator, you will be charged for the call.

Note 4: In some countries, there may be problems connecting to a Shell Global Helpline number from a mobile telephone, public callbox or VoIP. If you experience such a problem please consider to log in your report on the internet website listed above. Alternatively you might call +1 800-961-4117 directly, however please be aware that you will be charged for international calling.

Note 5: Country-specific communication material giving more information on the Helpline – Speak Up pages and how to access is available as part of the Global Helpline in each country.

Note 6: Please notify the Helpline Administrator at SI-Global-Helpline-Administration@shell.com if there are any problems gaining access to the Helpline.

¹Meaning of Line Types

AT&T Direct Access

An AT&T access code number that is unique for the calling country is first dialled. A recorded operator prompt then asks you “please dial the number you are calling now”, indicating to key in the second number as listed above. This second number is the US toll-free number that connects you to the Helpline.

AT&T Direct Access is not available in all countries. Further information on availability and the access codes themselves for each country can be obtained on the AT&T website at <http://www.usa.att.com/traveler/index.jsp>

Please note that the telecom infrastructure in some countries does not support mobile connectivity.

Local Toll-free

For a number of Shell countries, a special toll-free telephone number has been set up for the Helpline. It is only available to be dialled from within that country and once dialled, it will connect you directly through to the Helpline.

Please be aware that when using a Mobile Telephone or Internet (VoIP), you might be required to first enter “+” followed by your country code, before dialling the local toll-free number. In such cases the first "0" of the Local Toll-free number might have to be ignored.

For example for Belgium: +3280073364

Call Collect (2 step dialling)

First contact your local operator (numbers can vary per city and carrier within the same country), and request a collect call to be placed to the US telephone number listed as step "2" in your country's section.
